Friday 10th – Lunch Bunch to McClard's BBQ - Rogers

In 1928, Alex and Gladys McClard owned the Westside Tourist Court, a motor court motel serving the needs of travelers visiting Hot Springs, Ark. When a down-and-out traveler could not come up the $10 he owed for his two-month stay, he asked the couple to accept a recipe for "the world's greatest Bar-B-Q sauce" to cover his expenses. Since something was better than nothing, the couple accepted the recipe. They tasted the truth in the traveler's claim, to their great surprise and delight. Then and there, Westside Tourist Court became Westside Bar-B-Q, with smoked goat as the starring menu attraction. In 1942, McClard's moved into its current location – a white-washed stucco building in Hot Springs. For many years, drive-in service was provided with horn toot or blinking lights. Carhops hung trays of ribs and sandwiches on automobile doors while the driver dialed in the radio to catch tunes from the neon jukebox inside. Today goat meat has disappeared from the menu, as well as the carhops from the curbside. Yet, the priceless BBQ sauce recipe remains, and the original recipe now sits locked away in a safety deposit box in downtown Hot Springs. Join us today as we travel to Rogers where the McClard's tradition is brought to life in NWA. Depart 10:30am R $ (W)

Thursday 16th – Diner's Club to Monte Ne Chicken

Once upon a time in the Ozarks, there was a resort called Monte Ne. William Hope "Coin" Harvey founded the resort, and he was an essential advisor on economic matters to William Jennings Bryan during Bryan's presidential bid in 1896. Harvey visited Rogers during that campaign and was impressed with the area's beauty, which reminded him of his native West Virginia. In 1900 he bought some of those hills, valleys and springs – specifically a place called "Silver Springs." Around this cluster of springs, he built Monte Ne, which was meant to become a health resort, political headquarters, publishing house, think tank for philosophical luminaries, a place for the education and improvement of civilization itself, and finally, a time capsule. When the White River was dammed to create Beaver Lake, Monte Ne was flooded. The remains of the resort are underwater today, a legacy in the time capsule. Join us tonight as we enjoy fried chicken and all the fixings around a family table. You'll cordially pass the food to your neighbor, and the only thing you need to choose is your drink and dessert. Depart 4pm R MSF $ (W)
